6. SPECIFICATION OF GOODS

We pride ourselves on the high quality of our work when creating Custom Team Uniforms and Custom Team Accessories. We manufacture, print and embroider using the highest quality materials, to ensure that every job is completed to the highest standards, and under normal circumstances every garment is inspected by at least two people before being packed for shipping. The nature of the screen-printing and vinyling process is such that there will inevitably be some tiny variations in the positioning of prints on garments within a batch; this is usually undetectable, and is an unavoidable characteristic of the technique. There are also occasional slight variations in colour and size integrity within a batch of shirts – this, along with consistency of garment build quality, is something completely outside our control, and we must ask you to understand that such variations must be accepted as normal, and not "faults" (within the standard tolerances prevalent in the garment manufacturing industry).

It is also an inevitable characteristic of fabric garments that some slight shrinkage may occur after washing: we choose the garments we supply carefully to ensure that we use brands with the best shrink-resistance characteristics. Cotton (and other garment fabrics) is not a rigid material; stretching is inevitable during the process of being worn, washed etc., so we use additives in our inks to enable printed designs to stretch and maintain their integrity during the course of normal use, and avoid the "cracking" found on lower-quality prints. However, under extreme stress even our prints may be subject to some slight degradation, and of course over long periods of time (and cycles of washing) a small amount of wear-and-tear is inevitable. Our prints are properly cured so that they won't come off, even under extreme conditions, but minor degradation as described, while rare, does occasionally happen and is normal, not an indication of a fault with the print or the garment.

All descriptions and other details provided in relation to goods are subject to confirmation by us and may be changed without notice. All sizes are approximate "to fit" sizes and are given as a general guidance only. Colours, shades, materials and sizes of goods may vary to a minor extent from those illustrated.

All goods are subject to availability. We may cancel a supply agreement or offer suitable alternative items if the goods ordered are out of stock or no longer available.

Please note that protective wear products and medical supports are only designed to reduce the impact and severity of an injury sustained. Lookfly Ltd accepts no responsibility for any injury sustained whilst wearing Lookfly Ltd products or products supplied by Lookfly Ltd.

7. PRICES

Whilst every effort will be made to maintain the prices indicated by Lookfly Ltd in any of our communication, it may not always be possible for reasons beyond our control.
